

No action deemed necessary against Paul

By Barry Holt

No action was taken against SGA Treasurer Bob Paul at the April 6 Senate meeting, where he apologized for questionable actions he took at a March 29 Finance Committee (FinComm) meeting.

In question was Paul's inclusion of two absent FinComm members in the minutes and counting them in a vote concerning an Economics club initial allocation recommendation. Other FinComm members were unaware that the names had been added. "I was wrong—I'm sorry I did it. I didn't want to penalize [the two members] with an absence," he said. The two members, Paula Ming and Tom Winston, did show at the meeting, but attended late and were not present for the vote concerning the Economics club.

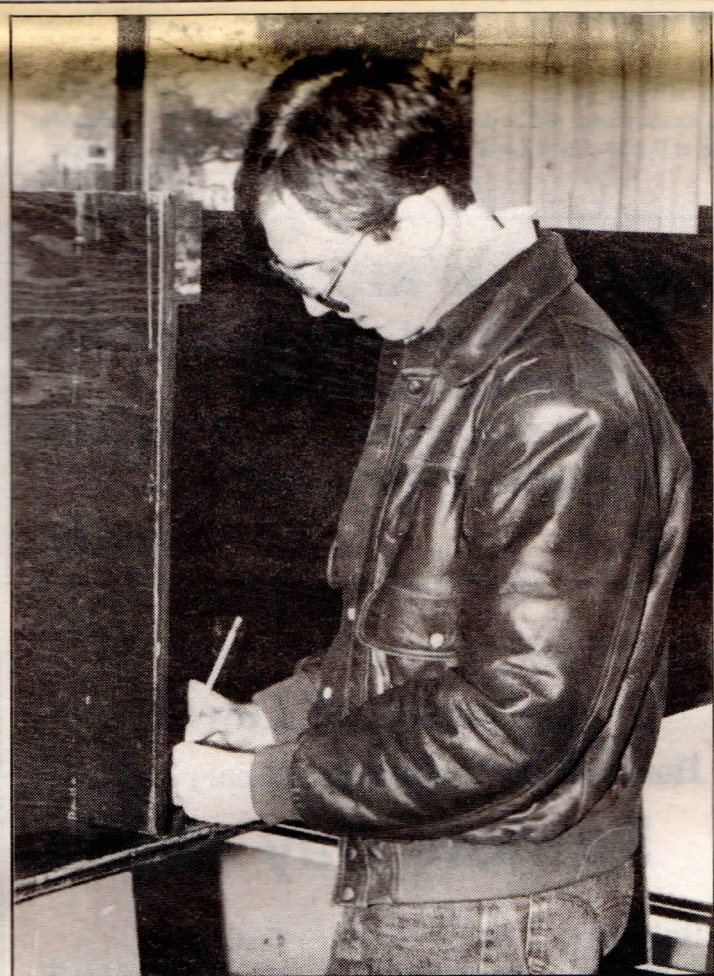

The Economics club recommendation, which was passed by the Activities Commission prior to the FinComm vote, would have granted the newly formed Economics Club $435 which is $200 more than new, unproven clubs usually receive. However, the Senate, which makes the final decision based on the recommendations of the first two committees, only authorized $200 for the club. This was based partly on some confusion generated because the Activities Commission filed their recommendation on the wrong form.

Corrections

—Paula Ming is not a senator, as was reported last week in connection with this story.

—Tom Winston is not a member of the Economics club, as was also reported.

Union picketers protest at residence hall construction site

By Peter Anton

Members of the Local Carpenters Union No. 49 picketed in front of Leitch Hall yesterday protesting R. W. Granger, the contractor hired to build the new dormitory.

The picketers lined up in front of cement trucks as these vehicles tried to enter the site, but the Wilson truck drivers (also members of a union) crossed the lines with the help of the Lowell Police. Meanwhile University Police stood ready to make sure the protest stayed off university property and on the street. A permit from the University police is required of anyone wishing to protest on university property.

The protestors picketed in an effort to delay construction claiming that the contractor hired non-union "scab" employees. The protest seemed to have little effect: construction continued as scheduled.

R.W. Granger, the contractor hired to build the new dormitory, is an "open shop" employer: one who hires both union and non-union employees. Rates for workers were set at the prevailing union levels by the contractor for anyone willing to work.

Members of the Local Carpenters Union who were picketing refused to comment on the protest, saying instead that their "sign says all they want to say."

75 arrested during drunken spring break riot in Palm Beach

(CPS) Tempers and efforts to show off, apparently raised to explosive levels by intense heat, led to the second major riots of the college spring break season the last weekend of March.

Palm Beach, Cal., police arrested 75 people and issued citations to 200 others during a weekend of sporadic fighting and public drunkenness among the 50,000 students vacationing in town.

"When you have alcohol involved," said police Officer Karen Holtz, "mouths start getting bigger, and guys start thinking they're tougher than they are."

Holtz said the mixture of 100-degree heat and alcohol contributed to the disturbances.

A week earlier, students on break in Port Aransas, Tex., rioted for 4 hours, dispersing only after 7 people were injured, police bombed the crowd with tear gas, and 8 people were arrested.

Holtz said the troubles in Palm Springs — where in 1986 hundreds of students ran wild, vandalized property, threw rocks, assaulted female passersby and briefly took over the central business district before police moved in to arrest 708 people and issue 4,943 citations — were "nothing out of hand."

After the 1986 riots, Palm Springs and Fort Lauderdale in Florida dropped their efforts to attract students for spring break. Only Jamaica, the Gulf Coast of Texas and a handful of Florida towns now actively try to lure students to their beaches.

Mexico reportedly also is considering discouraging American Collegians from vacationing in traditional places like Mazatlan, Nogales and Rocky Point.

Dead puppy protest

A University of Wisconsin student reneged on his threat to kill a puppy March 24, calling it a "prankish threat to kill one mythical animal."

Philosophy major David Reed said the threat to burn a 10-week-old dog was intended only to protest "the brutality of war."

"I'm quite pleased" by the publicity, said Reed, who explained he was moved to make the threat by President Reagan's dispatching of 3,200 U.S. soldiers to Central America.

Reagan was sending the troops in reaction to an incident in which the Nicaraguan military chased rebel soldiers across the hondurn border.

"People panicked to save the life of one mythical puppy while thousands (of people) were dying," Reed added.

"Our attitudes about war and suffering are complacency and numbness. I tried to shock them out of it, to demonstrate suffering."

Rising number of older students

The nation's college student body has gotten older faster than has been realized, a still-unpublished report circulated at a national higher education conference last week contended.

Forty-five percent of the people now enrolled in college are older than the age of 25, and that could rise to 50 percent by 1998.

Though most schools aimed to enroll "suburban housewives" who had money to spend, the nontraditional students actually registering for classes often are poorer women aiming to train themselves for clerical jobs.

Typical presidents

The typical president of a college is a white, 53-year-old male, the American Council on Education concluded in a new survey of who runs U.S. campuses.

In the survey of 2,105 chief executive officers of accredited higher education institutions. It was also found that women presidents were twice as likely to be younger than age 40 as men. 85 percent were married, but women presidents were far more likely than men to be divorced or never married.

Madelaine Green, director, of ACE's Center for Leadership Development, wonders "does the fact that most presidents are married mean that it is more difficult to become a president if you are single?"

Demands given to Senate Education Committee Chairman Kraus

A Coalition consisting of the State Student Association of Massachusetts, the Student Advisory Committee (the student trustees), Low Income Students for Survival, and the Faculty Union met with the Chairman of the Education Committee, Senator Richard A. Kraus of Arlington, on Monday, April 4th. The coalition discussed with the Chairman a list of demands passed at the S.S.A.M. General Assembly meeting of March 31, 1988 and agreed upon by the Coalition. They are as follows:

1. No tuition increase until more low and moderate income students begin once again to enroll at the public colleges and universities. (They have been dropping out in recent years.)
2. No tuition increase until we know exactly what income group will have to pay the increases, and no increase should bring the students contribution toward his or her education in excess of 25% of the total cost of that education. (The student's contribution now is about 20-22% The 25% level should be phased in over 5 years.)
3. Not less than 50% of all the state's financial scholarship money should go to the public colleges and universities. (Right now public institutions get only about 30-40% of the state's financial aid even though we have twice as many students on financial aid as the private colleges do.)
4. No tuition retention. (This would encourage the colleges to raise revenue through tuition rather than state appropriations.)

5. An increase in state scholarship money with a greater % of that money going towards cost of living expenses. Right now most state scholarship money goes toward covering tuition costs. Since the private colleges have higher tuitions, they get most of the money.

Although the Senator did not commit to any of the Coalition's demands he did agree that the private colleges should not get any greater percentages of the state's scholarship money than they're getting now.

Since the S.S.A.M. February General Assembly meeting many Student Governments have been writing and calling the Governor's Office and the Education Committee asking them to support no new tuition increase and a more even distribution of the state's scholarship money in favor of the public institutions. The lobbying effort seems to be having an effect. The student and faculty Coalition is now enthusiastically working together to insure students of concrete results. They are planning more meetings with other education committee members over the next couple of weeks and they are asking all students to call the Governor and Committee members in support of their efforts.

ings in Mexico about young Americans," said University of Arizona Dean of Students Rosalind Andreas, who added students "are behaving as if they don't have to be responsible for their actions."

Andreas's office, hoping to prevent students from offending their hosts, in late February published a list of trip guidelines advising students they don't have the same rights in Mexico as they do at home.

Nogales and Mazatlan police have imprisoned rowdy U.S. students in recent years, Andreas said.

In early March, moreover, an Arizona State University student was killed when he fell off the top of a train carrying a group of students to Mazatlan.

In Daytona Beach — by far now the most popular spring break locale, this year bringing an estimated 500,000 students to town — 6 people have died this season.

The fatalities occurred when vacationers, reportedly drinking, fell from hotel balconies.

As a student at the University of Lowell, I would urge your support of H.3010, the Capital Outlay Bill for higher Education. Quick passage is particularly essential to the University in order to help compensate for the many delays which have resulted since the devastating fire last year. NECCUM presents International Students Day

Friday, April 22, 1988, from 2:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. in Cumnock Hall.

The Northeast Consortium of Colleges in Massachusetts is pleased to present the third annual International Fair, an event which gives international students a chance to get together and share their cultures with the community through displays of art, culture, clothing, music, food, fashion shows, and dance. All students are welcome to attend, and all cultures are welcome to participate. In fact, involvement from student groups is crucial to the event's success.

Highlights will include a presentation on the Dominican Republic; Los Trinitarios, a Latin dance group from Lawrence High School; a student discussion on the problems and successes of adjusting to a different culture; and a disco dance, sponsored by U Lowell's Latin American students.

The Dominican Republic presentation, consisting of slides, discussions, displays, and music, is based on the experience of two NECCUM members. Their reasons for visiting the Dominican Republic included a desire to understand the culture, learn the language, learn about the difficulties which foreign students experience, and improve the quality of education for foreign and minority students at NECCUM schools. With the college age population becoming smaller, colleges will have to recruit more extensively among minorities.

Participation is needed from U Lowell student groups and faculty! For more information contact Dr. William Lindeke at 452-5000 ext. 2776.

Four Saguars — 1' x 1' acrylic on canvas, by Fred Faudie (1982)

'Seven Years' from Gallery 410

Fred Faudie's 'Seven Years,' A Sabbatical Retrospective
April 25 - May 20, 1988.
Reception: Wednesday, April 27,
3:00 - 6:00 p.m.

The paintings and drawings in this mini retrospective span the time period from Fred Faudie's first sabbatical leave of 1978 through 1979, to his most recent leave of 1986 through 1987.

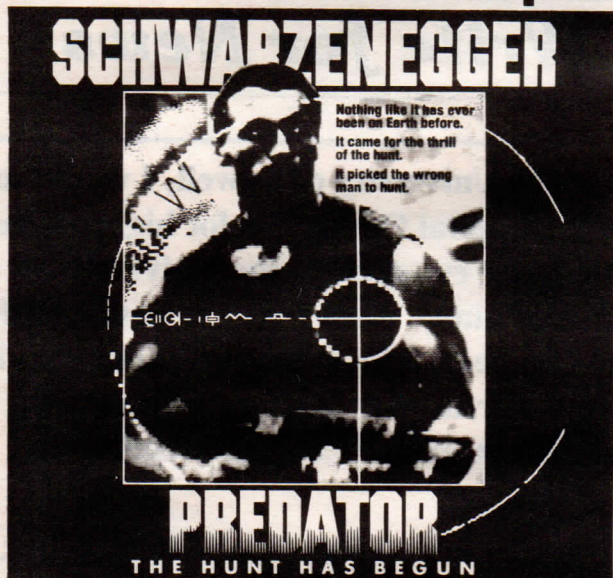

The exhibited pieces reflect his concern with the integration of avant-garde formal interests and kitsch subject matter. The resulting figurative paintings present contemporary subject situations and personal predicaments while simultaneously alluding to aesthetic stances current in the art world.

Works from several theme groups, previously exhibited in national juried exhibitions and in one-person shows at the Howard Yezerski Gallery, are included in the exhibition. Among these are drawings from the Pencula series, an adaptation of the Dracula myth in a world inhabited by tiny pencil and ink bottle people. Paintings from the Pool Suite present a small above ground swimming pool which is the graphic and psychological locus for a series of suburban sexual misadventures. Work from the Billy Group, based on the myth of the western outlaw Billy the Kid, presents a violent western world acted out within the space of contemporary color field environments. In the Surfing paintings, small figures play and struggle in a sometimes friendly ocean. Graphite drawings from the past year present smaller confined domestic spaces and situations of musing and melancholy.

Fred Faudie, who holds an M.A. in painting from the University of Iowa, and an M.F.A. in illustration from Syracuse University, is a Professor in the Art Department of the University of Lowell. He has an extensive exhibition record, including several one person exhibitions in the New York and Boston area, and many competitive national painting and drawing shows. He received a Massachusetts State Art Fellowship in Painting in 1986. His work is included in the Lincoln County Heritage Trust, the Lincoln state monument (both in Lincoln NM), the Addison Gallery of American Art, and in numerous private collections. He is represented by the Howard Yezerski Gallery of Andover, MA.

Surrender severely underrated

All through my childhood, I rebelled against any teaching about God. I thought God hated me and I wanted nothing to do with him. I was never taught what his attitude toward our imperfections was.

When I was thirteen years old I stopped going to church. What a scene that was! In order to get my way, my only recourse was to throw a tantrum. But I did get my way and then for about ten years I was completely separated from the church and from God. I was almost totally faithless. I still believed in God, but had no hope. I didn't know what my true purpose in life was, nor did I care.

Then in August of 1986, my brother became a Christian. I was skeptical at first, but I listened as he talked about his faith. He said that God loves us even when no one else seems to care. He showed me how accurate the Bible is as an historical document. He talked about the joy he had received since surrendering his life to God. I got curious. What did he have that I didn't? I wanted to find out. So in September of that year, I began to read the Bible on my own.

I read through the Gospel of John by the beginning of November, but found that I didn't understand much of it. In mid-November I enrolled in a course at my old church, but by the time it was over I had learned very little about God or the Bible.

Then early in February, 1987, I was the victim of a lay-off. Since I was out of work for three months, I had plenty of free time to do some searching.

In mid-March, I found out about a Home Bible Study through a friend here at school. I was a bit skeptical, but decided I would give it a try. When I was there I felt at home immediately. No pressure, just love for each other and for God.

After I had attended this study a couple of times, a friend, Ron, asked me if I was "born again." I thought to myself, "Oh, no, another one of THEM!" I thought he was crazy, but since I really didn't know what he meant, I asked him. He explained it, and I answered that I wasn't. The next week he asked me again. I didn't know what to say, so I just said that I was.

Then one night that summer I was having trouble getting to sleep because of something I had done. It was actually quite trivial, but I was obsessed with it. I was sure I was going crazy. So I got out of bed and wrote what I felt in the form of a letter;

"Dear Lord, release me from what binds me. Free me from my guilt and uneasiness about what I've done. And take away my fears of what the future may bring. Help me to simply ask for and to accept your help. How shall I see signs? Walk with me; hold my hand; embrace me; show me who you really are! All you have given me is so much more than I have ever asked. Yet, I know in my heart I can be so much closer to you! Show me the way! I will follow wherever you may lead me, because I know, I am certain that you will never lead me astray.

Your love is the one thing I cherish more than can possibly be measured in earthly terms. My love for you has no beginning and no end. My love grows everyday, every hour, every minute. To you I confess all I have done to harm myself and others. I ask for your forgiveness and that you remove all of my destructive tendencies. I know, because of your love, that you have already begun to do this. Teach me to forgive myself, for I know that I cannot accept forgiveness until I have forgiven myself and others.

How shall I begin to see the path when I have been to blinded by worldly things? I am the blind man, and only you can bring light to my darkened world. Bring sight to my eyes and forgiveness to my heart as you have done for so many of your children.

Oh, Lord, how great you are! I love thee, with all of my heart! And every day you remind me of your unending, unconditional love for me!

Your child,
Paul"

I wasn't aware of the significance of the letter at the time of its writing, but I was later to realize that this was when I surrendered my life to God. "Surrender?" you ask? "But isn't that something you do when you've lost all hope?" For some maybe. But surrendering to God is not like surrendering to an enemy. God promises us that when we give our life up, he will take it and improve it and return it back to us better than we could ever imagine.

If you are concerned about your relationship with God and would like to talk to someone about it, please contact Campus Ambassadors at SIC Box 111N or call 667-9529.

Quiet day for women

Reflection on "Fire-Woman"?

Are you a "fire-woman"? The following questions might help you come closer to the fire in your life: What different forms does fire take? What are your usual (or perhaps unusual) contacts with fire? What are the properties of fire? What is it like to have too much fire? What is it like to have too little fire? How would a woman whose fire-nature is in play handle problems?

A woman in touch with her fire-nature is one with a well-developed intuition. "Fieryness" is that part of ourselves that is about our spirit-lives, about our inner sparks. All ULowell women (students, faculty, staff, friends) are invited on a retreat at which we will pay attention to and nourish this part of ourselves. Taking the Legend of St. Barbara as our starting place (from Betsy Caprio's book, The Woman Sealed in the Tower), we will explore the element of fire, the ego function of intuition, and the image of the shekinah. Ritual, reflection, faith-sharing, and drawing will be vehicles for our exploration.

Campus ministers Imogene Stulken and Pat Davison will conduct this fourth in a series of "Quiet Days of Prayer for Women" on Saturday, May 7th, in Preston Hall on the West Campus. The day will begin at 9:00 a.m. and conclude by 3:30 p.m. Lunch will be provided. To get more information, to ask about transportation and/or to make a reservation, contact either Pat (454-0151, 452-5000 x2464) or Imogene (454-0683).

Why I became a part of AFROTC

"Hindsight is twenty-twenty". This quote means a lot to me in terms of why I joined AFROTC. As a senior in high school, going to college was considered an expectation of one's self. The future was not seen in its true picture. Life after college was not a real consideration it was more of something that would "happen".

Things do not just happen though, people make things happen. Decisions are not arbitrary either, they determine credibility, stamina and most of all character. I chose AFROTC because I was offered a scholarship and I accepted that scholarship based on my experiences in the Marines Junior ROTC program on my high school campus.

I, unlike most people in AFROTC, did not want to become a pilot; I wanted to continue my experiences of JROTC. Of course the money was a big factor of my education, but AFROTC was not a burden or sacrifice for that education. It was a means to an end.

As I look back on the reasons I joined AFROTC, I find that they are not the same reasons I would reiterate now. The advantages of AFROTC that I see now from my hindsight were not even considered when I made my decision to say "yes" to AFROTC. Maybe the reasons that AFROTC is a good opportunity were not relayed to me well enough and maybe it was fate's hand that gave me the opportunity without fully knowing what a great opportunity AFROTC truly is.

I see now so many more reasons why people joined AFROTC. It is a fundamental preparation for the real world. It offers experience and direction with which one can decide to make a career of the Air Force or use their experience and direction as a maturing process.

The benefits once unseen by youth are now seen by hindsight and growth. AFROTC is the choice for me now for many worthwhile reasons, too many to get into now. However, the most unseen benefit of AFROTC is the confidence, union, and opportunity it provides for everyone. The biggest opportunity is job security after graduation and commission, and the greatest advantage, for me, in becoming a part of AFROTC, is opportunity.

Seniors

To Seniors who should be graduating in May but who will not because they have NOT completed the Physical Education Requirement.

Procedures for signing up for Summer Session I:

The privilege for you to complete the requirement this summer is being offered during the first summer session ONLY. In order for you to be able to do this, you must register through Continuing Education, using the following procedure:

1. Go to Continuing Education office and pick up the necessary form.
2. Make an appointment to see me: My office hours are posted on the door of my office in Mahoney B-2.
3. Registration dates are May 2nd thru May 25th.
4. Return to the Continuing Education Office with the signed, approved form from me with your checkbook. Pay for the course.
5. During our discussion, we will talk about what you will be doing to earn your credit(s) and when verification of that is due to me.
6. Turn in that verification to me by the pre-determined deadline.

DO NOT expect to be able to register for the course after May 25th. Plan ahead NOW.

If my office hours and your free time do not coincide, leave a message with your name and phone number, and I will call you. We can then make a mutually-agreeable appointment time.

Guidelines for club booths at spring carnival

1. A $25.00 deposit must be turned into Janice Larson (Fox 415) by Friday, April 22, 1988. This deposit will be forfeited if tables are not returned or your area is not adequately cleaned. (Make checks payable to Student Government Association).
2. The maximum size for any booth is 20 feet by 20 feet.
3. No open fires allowed. Charcoal grills off the ground are acceptable. There will be a designated area for disposal of coals.
4. If someone from your club has to leave from and return to the field for any reason, this must be registered with Tony Libro, AC, prior to the day of Spring Carnival. Otherwise, there is NO READMITTANCE.
5. Make sure your club has sufficient change. SGA will not provide change for any club, for any reason.
6. At the end of Spring Carnival, all tables must be returned to their designated area.
7. All trash must be bagged and tied. If you have a food booth, plan on at least 6 bags of trash. Other booths should plan on 4 bags of trash. Remember, if your area is not clean you will forfeit your deposit.
8. There is no electricity for booths.
9. If you plan on setting up your booth the night before, the gates will be locked at 12:00 midnight. Notify AC ahead of time.

IT DIDN'T COME EASY FOR THEM EITHER.

Each one had to practice. Again and again. When the big test came, each athlete was ready. Striving for his personal best.

That's how it is with sports. And that's how it is with another form of competition—graduate admissions exams.

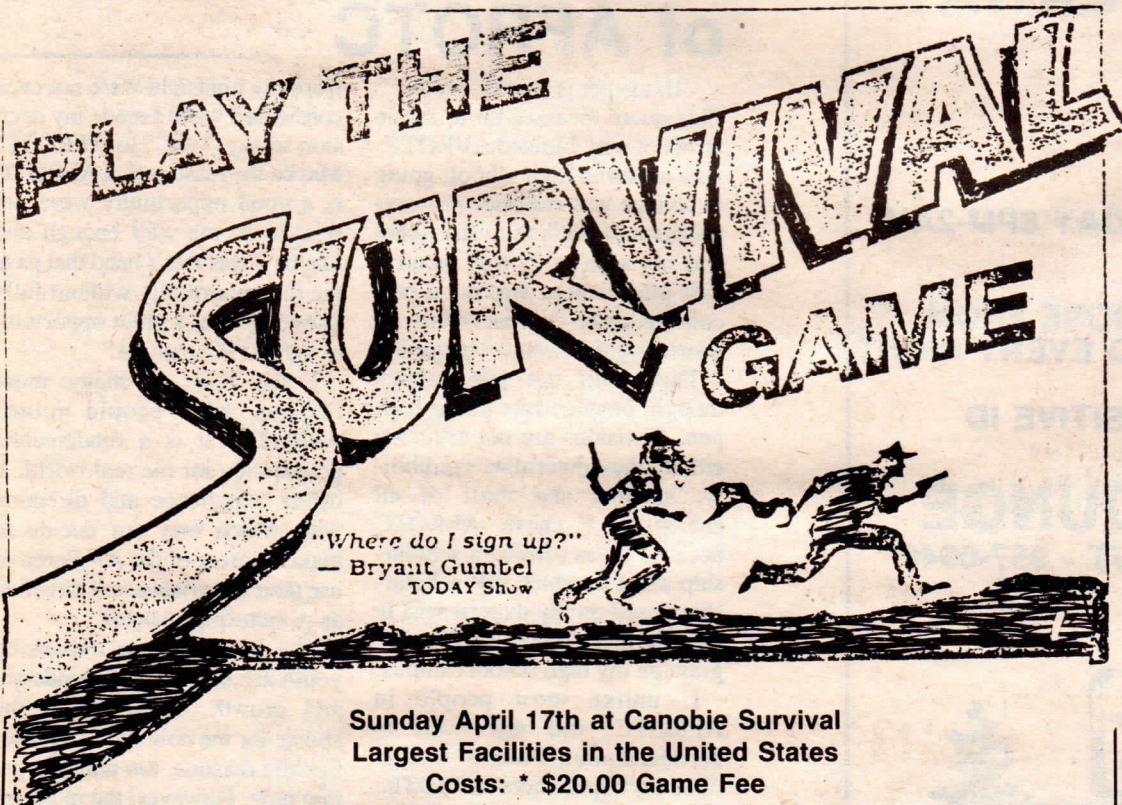

To do your best, you should prepare with the best. Kaplan.

Our students are able to score the most, year after year. Fact is, Kaplan preparation has helped over one million students onto the inside track, giving them the skills and confidence to finish strong.

If you're facing the GMAT, GRE, LSAT, MCAT, or professional tests like the Bar or CPA exams, call Stanley H. Kaplan. These athletes had to train to beat their competition. Maybe there's a lesson in it for you.

New Year in resettlement country

There are only a few days remaining to the closing day of the year of Rabbit. The year of Dragon will soon be taking place when the new Devada, known as angel in Khmer, replaces the old one. This will also be the time when the people of Cambodia hold their traditional New Year celebration.

In Cambodia, the celebration will begin on April 13 and it will last for a three day period just like every previous year. People everywhere, inside the country, will try to be with their kin and relatives at this very first day of the year. They will travel from town to town, province to province and city to city and some probably come from a very remote area just to share this special occasion with their close friends and close bloods. This is the time when kids can really enjoy their freedom. They can play outside the house as long as they please and they will be playing with one another charishly and happily without having to worry about their curfew. For young men, they will try to get around young women by playing Khmer traditional games such as pulling the rob, throw the towel-ball called Chorl Chhoung in Khmer, and others with one male team at one side and female's at the other. This will give them a chance to meet and get to know one another better and probably lead to future marriage. On the other spectrum, parent and parent will gather and talk, enjoying good meal together and probably playing poker. Alcohol drink will even help smoothing their conversations. Now and then you will hear them laughing as though they really enjoy each other's company. They will talk about anything, business, how their kids have grown and their dogs, cats and maybe get into politics a bit. Outside, at the park there will be enormous crowd gathering around cheering and yelling out loud trying to encourage the team, those who play games, they are in favor of. There will be a live-band nearby fighting against the sound of the fire crackers and a lot of young men will try to get the girls he likes to dance with him. For three days and two nights everyone in the country seem to go crazy. There will be a lot of people walking down the street day and night and they keep going from one place to another until they find something they like to see or play. What about the New Year in abroad?

For the Cambodian people who live in a resettlement country might experience a little bit differently, especially from one Khmer community to another. This year, for example, the Cambodian community in Lowell will hold their New Year celebration on April 16, and the Cambodian community in Boston will hold April 9, 16th and the 23rd. It is vary from one community to another. This variation of date and time of the event is due to the circumstances and the availability of the people to participate. As the consequences, they will hold this festive day a little late and some a little earlier than usual.

Nevertheless, the eagerness and the efforts that they have putting forward in this special occasion has shown that they still tie firmly with their culture and their mother-land regardless their previous experiences.

This year is the year of Dragon and it is said to bring a new form of hope and strength and courage to all. It will cure the pain and replace the sadness and sorrow with joys and happiness. The new Devada will look out for us so we all could have a safe and happy year thru. Happy New Year to all!

Earth day 1988

MASSPIRG chapters are reaching out to campus and community leaders, faculty, administrators, media, and celebrities to join in the statewide Earth Day 1988 celebration on April 22 and 23.

"We set out to capture the spirit of the first Earth Days in the Early '70's, when thousands of students and other citizens set aside a day to celebrate their environment and protect the planet from pollution," said ULowell Chapter Chair junior Tom Lucas.

"Today we're faced with even more serious threats; hazardous waste sites, holes in the ozone layer, and pesticides contaminating our drinking water, to name just a few. I think students today share a similar willingness to take action against environmental destruction," he continued.

In February, MASSPIRG chapters kicked off their Earth Day plans with a petition drive aimed at demonstrating campus support for MASSPIRG's Toxic Use Reduction Act. Close to 10,000 signatures, 1,000 of which were collected here at ULowell, were presented to the Dukakis administration March 8.

"I've certainly been encouraged by the campus enthusiasm for Earth Day," said junior Jeff Todd, ULowell's MASSPIRG Board of Directors Representative. "The students volunteering their time and energy to the project won't quit working after April 23. Earth Day is proving to be a great vehicle for tapping into people's concern's and alerting them to the whole range of opportunities to join campaigns to protect the environment."

There will be a Earth Day celebration and concert on the quad sponsored by MASSPIRG, the Activities Commission and PSU. It will be held on the South Campus quad, or in the S. Student Center in case of rain. Environmental groups and programs will have Informational Action tables. These will include incineration, toxics use reduction and safe drinking water.

In addition to campus events on April 22, students from across the state are working to coordinate Eastern Mass. Earth Day on the Boston Esplanade and one in Western Mass. on the Amherst Common.

Contributed by MASSPIRG.

Karate club

The Karate Club will be traveling to Tufts University on Saturday, April 19 to compete in the New England Collegiate Karate Conference Invitational Tournament. All participating members should meet in the lobby of Fox Hall at 8:00 a.m. The tournament is open to all students. The tournament will be held at Cousen Gym at Tufts. A minimal admission may be charged.

The NECKC beach party is being held on April 23 & 24. Anyone who is interested in going should contact a club officer for information.

On April 29, the University is holding Spring Carnival from 10:00 a.m. — 5:00 p.m. The club needs volunteers to help run our game. Anyone interested in helping out should contact Wendy Johnson at box #567 or at a workout.

As always, new members are welcome. For information, contact box #172, Fox 528 or stop by Mahoney Gym on Monday or Wednesday night from 6:00 — 8:00 p.m.

DRIVER'S CORNER

Mother nature looked favorably on the ULowell Sports Car Club as we ran our second autocross of the season on Sunday April 10th in the Riverside parking lot. If you did not win a trophie at least you got a tan. 35 drivers plus one race car showed up to run one of the tightest courses we've set up in a while. Speeds were down to 10 m.p.h. in the tight parts of the course and even the best drivers found it a challenge to avoid the pylons. U.L.S.C.C. alumnus Eric Krueger trailered in his MG racer to test his new oil system and demonstrate how much faster a race car could handle our course. He also demonstrated how fast a pylon disintegrates when a race car runs it over. Eric first began racing as a student at ULowell in the U.L.S.C.C. and now can be seen racing at tracks along the East coast including Bryar and Limerock.

There were five classes racing on the 10th with the winners being in class A: Mark Richter (87 IROCZ), class B: Jim Wilson (75 Chevelle), class C: Jeff Donker (80 RX-7), class D: Warren Kappeler (84 T-Bird), and class E: Bill Collyer (88 Mazda MX6). Look for a complete list of the final standings in the next issue of the Connector. The U.L.S.C.C. would like to thank the RX-7 club of New England for their help with the course work and Greg Paroyan and Travis Gitchel along with other individuals that worked the timer. To those who I have noticed racing on the streets around the lot while we are racing please stop because you are going to disturb the neighbors of the lot and they will think it is us and complain. If you really want to race your car your welcome to race with us, just keep it off the street. The next and last autocross of the spring is on April 24th in the Riverside lot. Registration is $5 and begins at 10 a.m. and first car off the line is at 11 a.m.

In other news money to go on the Montreal Gran Prix trip has to be into Dr. Isaks this week. Also U.L.S.C.C. elections are coming up. The offices of president, vice president, secretary and treasurer will be open for new people. If you have thought of running, do it but, do it soon. For more info. club meetings are every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Fox 523 or call Erik at 475-9175. Erik Day, Pres. U.L.S.C.C.

What's in a Name?

By Margaret Smith

Editor

In 1972 Marlon Brando sent Sacheen Littlefeather, a young Apache woman, to the Oscars, to reject the award for him on behalf of all the Native Americans discriminated against by Hollywood.

Three weeks ago, Julian Pierce, a Lumbee Indian lawyer and Justice candidate, was found shot in the back in his home. Pierce was an outspoken civil rights advocate who condemned racism faced by the Lumbees in North Carolina. Despite Pierce's prominence as a so-called Indian activist, his murder was barely a breath on the national news. What if he had been black?

When most of us think of discrimination, we think in terms of black and white. To most, a racial incident on campus means Bill Cole vs. the Dartmouth Review, New Africa House vs. U-Mass Amherst, etc.

Most campuses are not proud of issues like these. Yet for many campuses, racism is not just explosive events—it is part of their agenda.

To find it, look at their teams. Not the number of minority students on the teams, but the team names: the Dartmouth Indians. The U-Lowell Chiefs.

When I first realized that some people might be offended by that, I pointed it out to another student. He rolled his eyes and said, "Isn't that digging a little deep?" I said, "Could you put up with 'the Atlanta Slaves'?"

He was quiet a minute, and then said that there weren't enough Native Americans going to U-Lowell for it to matter.

True, they aren't here in great droves, probably because many of them cannot afford to stay in high school, never mind come here. Or maybe they've all gone to Dartmouth, which they can attend tuition-free. After what their team is named, that seems the least that Dartmouth can do.

And what about the ones not at Dartmouth? They must all be selling beads on a defunct Hollywood western set—at least, that is what many people seem to believe. If that one student is any indication, then until a race or sex, for that matter—reaches a certain quota at U-Lowell, it is acceptable to trivialize them.

Most of us are not aware that naming a team the Chiefs, Braves, Redskins, etc., is any form of prejudice, since most of us are never taught to consider Native Americans part of mainstream America. How sad, especially since they were here first.

Lighten up Rev. Brown

He stands tall and proud atop the Empire State Building while planes and helicopters fire deadly rounds of bullets at his fur-covered body. In that scene, King Kong dies but is remembered because his face is carved into Mount Rushmore. Thousands of Kongas are fanatically drawn to his tomb deep beneath the Grand Canyon. There are even reports of changing the dollar bill so that it will bear his likeness.

Do you believe any of what was said in the previous paragraph or do you see it as being so ridiculous and far beyond the realm of possibilities?

Last week, Rev. Art Brown broke out his soapbox to denounce the Connector for running a blurb on the comics page that said, "Remember: King Kong died for your sins."

The Connector doesn't attack any religions or races. If we did attack them we would have no readers. We ran the King Kong piece not out of malice, but because it was so absurd that it was humorous. Notice where it was located in the paper—on the comics page. That fact alone should have tipped you off that it wasn't to be taken seriously. If we had run the same piece as an editorial cartoon, then there would be grounds for his argument. But, most things on the comics page are there to make people laugh. Hence the name.

The one crime the Connector can be called on for the King Kong piece is one of bad timing. It was unfortunate that the acting comics editor chose to run the piece during holy week, but let's not make a mountain out of a monkey hill. It must say somewhere in the Bible that laughter is good for you and that you should never take anything too seriously.

So lighten up Rev. Brown! No one on the staff has a gripe with your religion or any other on campus. In fact many of us agree that it was Jesus and not King Kong who died for our sins. Although I can't be sure about all of them.

Letters to the Editor:

P.E.'s object to E.E. MADNESS comic

Last week in the comics section of the Connector there was a feeble attempt at humor in the strip called E. E. MADNESS, implying stupidity on the part of a plastics engineer. This strip is, in reality, making light of a tragic occurrence in the laboratory. We believe that it was tasteless and uncalled for. Either the authors of E. E. MADNESS do not understand the facts behind the incident, or they are insensitive to the physical and emotional scars of the victims.

The exact cause of the accident is still unknown, but was not the fault of the student as portrayed in the strip. It was simply a contaminated waste bottle that exploded, causing two students to be showered with shards of glass and nitric acid. They received second and third degree acid burns along with lacerations to the face and upper body.

Not only do they have to deal with the tragedy on an individual basis, but also with this ignorant or uncaring mockery on the university level. One would expect that their peers would be supportive of them in their misfortune. Can they honestly find humor in two pretty girls receiving facial lacerations?

Chris Barry, Peter Majeski, and John Veilleux

To the Editor:

The recent cartoon which you placed in The Connector was at best tasteless. In recent weeks my fellow Plastics Engineers and I have read your feeble attempts at jokes in The Connector and have come to the conclusion that you obviously have the mind of a garden variety slug.

The way I see it you must be jealous because every week in the Connector you see two thirds of the companies who come here are for Plastics Engineers. Could it be that the competition in E.E. is too much for you?? You mean you don't have a job??? Well there's still plenty of openings at the ACME septic tank cleaning service down the street.

The Connector is the student newspaper of the University of Lowell. Published weekly during the school year, by and for the students of the University of Lowell and the University Community. The paper is typeset on an in-house Compugraphic MCS 100 Typesetting System and is printed at Charles River Publishing in Cambridge, MA

Sex and reproduction in the 80's

Once upon a time, making babies was a private, family affair that anyone could choose to become involved with. As medical science and technology have been added to the picture, however, making babies isn't what it used to be. Today, making babies the old fashioned way is only one way of bringing about new human life. And, with this change, has come a long list of unanswered questions that philosophers and moralists, legislators and lawyers are only beginning to tackle.

A good example is currently before our courts. John and Mary, married and childless, asked their mutual friend Jane to become the surrogate mother of the child they could not have themselves. Jane agreed and had implanted in her womb a fertilized embryo, the product of John's sperm and Mary's egg, fertilized "in vitro" or outside the body. The court is being asked to declare that the child that Jane has given birth to is the natural offspring of John and Mary. The case of John and Mary and Jane is causing us to take a harder look at things that we normally took for granted like motherhood, fatherhood and birthright.

Or take the case of a wealthy tycoon who deposited his sperm in a sperm bank where it was frozen and stored. Shortly after doing so, he died suddenly in a plane crash. If his sperm, is used to fertilize an egg, does the possible new individual become his legal heir or, how about his moral heir? Who should decide? And to what extent should the tycoon's own wishes be respected and adhered to?

There are many other types of questions around today that variously deal with human experimentation, genetic engineering and therapy, utilizing fetal cells. What they all have in common is a generic parent called reproductive technology. In the last 10 years the science of medicine has moved rapidly ahead in exploring and altering the natural processes of reproduction. And the result is that reproductive technology has brought into reality things that once upon a time only appeared in science fiction.

Because the questions raised by reproductive technology - questions of in vitro fertilization, sperm banks, surrogate parenting and genetic engineering - are so new, the medical, moral and legal communities are scrambling today to ask the right questions about where these developments are taking society. Are we plunging headlong into a 'brave new world' where human life becomes a commodity and having a baby is an entitlement or are we marching forward toward creating a healthier world where true human dignity is respected and enhanced as diseases are cured and the quality of life is increased?

SEX AND REPRODUCTION: VALUES, ETHIC AND POLICY is the title of the Second Annual Newman Lecture, sponsored by the Catholic Center at U.Lowell, which will deal with the ethical dimensions of reproductive technology. Dr. Lisa Sowle Cahill, Professor of Theological Ethics and Moral Theology at Boston College and a nationally recognized authority in this field of ethics, will deliver the Annual Newman Lecture on Wednesday April 27th at 8:00 p.m. in the Media Center, O'Leary 222, South Campus Library of the University of Lowell. There is no charge for the lecture and all students, faculty and members of the University community are invited to attend.

Spring Carnival 88

YEARS OF INCUBATION

Rules and Regulations for Carny

In order to cut down on the vandalism and personal injuries associated with 'warm-up' for Spring Carnival, the following policies will be in effect in the dorms from Thursday, April 28 through Saturday, April 30. Each dormitory will be assigned a security officer, either UNIVERSITY OFFICERS or LOWELL POLICE. The officer is there to protect lives and property. PLEASE COOPERATE WITH HIM. If you are asked to identify yourself by security personnel or dorm staff, please do so immediately. If your I.D. card is taken for misconduct and turned into Dean King's Office, your dorm room reservation for September will be CANCELLED. If you are a Senior you will not be allowed to remain in Residence during Senior Week AND OTHER PENALTIES MAY BE IMPOSED AS WELL. Each dorm resident is allowed only TWO GUESTS who must be signed in before 11:00 p.m. No guests will be allowed to stay overnight if they are not signed in before 11:00 p.m. Please instruct your visitors to remain with you. YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR YOUR GUESTS.

The check-in procedure in effect on weekends will also be in effect starting Thursday evenings at 7:00 p.m.

Spring Carnival Ticket Policy

1. Tickets may be picked up at the North and South Campus Student Information Centers between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. from April 14 to April 28.
2. You must have a ticket in order to get into Spring Carnival. Tickets will not be sold at the door.
3. One ticket per registered full-time student. You must prove you are a full-time student in one of

We sincerely hope you have a good time at Spring Carnival and the 'warm-up' events on Thursday. These measures are necessary to protect you and the dorms. Thanks for your cooperation in this matter.

The following security measures will be in effect from 3:00 p.m. Thursday through Friday:

A. DORM STAFF - THURSDAY AND FRIDAY:

1. Duty extended 7:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m.
2. Number of Counselors on duty will be increased.
3. All staff are requested to be present in their dorms.
4. Rounds will be every 30 minutes.

5. NO KEGS, NO BEER-BALLS will be allowed.

B. CAMPUS SECURITY/LOWELL POLICE

1. Duty begins at 7:00 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at 7:00 a.m.

2. Officers assigned to:

- | | |
|----------------|--------------|
| A. Leitch | B. Bourgeois |
| C. Fox | D. Concordia |
| E. Smith/Eames | |

3. Officers to patrol continuously and be highly visible.

4. Allow NO public drinking on lawns, overhangs, stairways, bathrooms, and halls. Leitch, Bourgeois and Fox overhangs are OFF LIMITS.

two ways. 1) You must present a valid student I.D. card, or 2) you must possess a letter from the registrar's office.

4. Guest or non-student tickets will be available for $8.00 each*. They can be purchased on the same days and times as mentioned above.

*These tickets can only be purchased by ULowell students and are limited to two non-student tickets to every student.

Hey, dude...Let's party at Spring Carnival

It has been about 3 years since the University of Lowell has seen a "real" Spring Carnival and that means that probalby only the seniors or students on the five or more year plan will have experienced one.

Spring Carnival is held on University Day which is traditionally the last Friday of April. This day is for students to take advantage of the spring weather and take a day off from studies before the finals crunch.

This year's Spring Carnival promises to be the best ever. The Activities Commission has been working diligently to round out the day's activities with bands and novelty acts. The day is being tailored much more towards a carnival type atmosphere than past carnivals.

The events that have been planned so far are: magician, mimes, juggler, caricaturists, game master and fortune teller to add to the carnival atmosphere also the Max Creek and Barrence bands will be performing. There will be a midway made up of clubs on campus selling food and other items. Also, there will be a ferris wheel, moonwalk, and a round-up.

The carnival will be in operation from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. so bring a blanket, a frisbee and your suntan lotion, but don't plan on bringing any containers as they will not be allowed. The A.C. will provide free tonic so you will not die of thirst.

There will be a ticket policy stated elsewhere in this issue and others.

So, come one, come all and above all have fun.

Best Booth Contest

1. $5.00 entry fee.
2. Entry fee should be given to Janice Larson (Fox 415) with booth deposit.
3. Best booth will be judged by the Activities Commission. Decision of the judges are final.
4. Winner gets ALL money collected from clubs who enter.

What happens during the interview?

The interviewing process can be scary if you don't know what to expect. All interviews fit a general pattern. While each interview will differ, all will share three common characteristics: the beginning, middle and conclusion.

The typical interview will last 30 minutes, although some may be longer. A typical structure is as follows:

- Five minutes-small talk
- Fifteen minutes-a mutual discussion of your background and credentials as they relate to the needs of the employer
- Five minutes-asks you for questions
- Five minutes-conclusion of interview

As you can see, there is not a lot of time to state your case. The employer may try to do most of the talking. When you do respond to questions or ask your own, your statements should be concise and organized without being too brief.

You need to control more than half of the 15-minute personal discussion in order to make your key points.

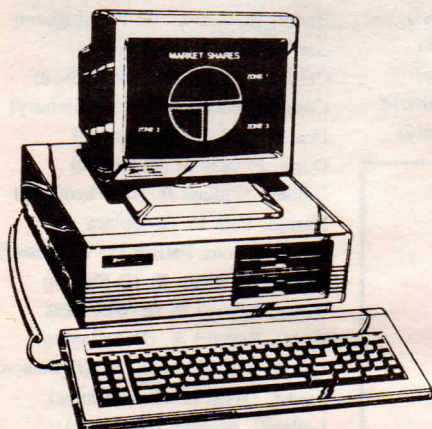

It starts before you even say hello

The typical interview starts before you even get into the inner sanctum. The recruiter begins to evaluate you the minute you are identified. You are expected to shake the recruiter's hand upon being introduced. Don't be afraid to extend your hand first. This shows assertiveness.

It's a good idea to arrive at the placement office at least 15 minutes early. This will give you a chance to mentally practice your introduction and possibly size up your competition.

What happens during the interview?

You can also use the time to relax. It gets easier later. It may mean counting to ten slowly or wiping your hands on a handkerchief to keep them dry.

How's your small talk vocabulary?

Many recruiters will begin the interview with some small talk. Topics may range from the weather to sports and will rarely focus on anything that brings out your skills. Nonetheless, you are still being evaluated. First impressions often are the most important so this phase of the interview can be very critical.

Even though the small talk seems informal and relaxed, it has a definite purpose. Recruiters are trained to evaluate candidates on many different points. They may be judging how well you communicate on an informal basis. This means you must do more than smile and nod.

The recruiter has the floor

The main part of the interview starts when the recruiter begins discussing the organization. He/she may spend a great deal of time talking about the position and the organization, while discussing your background. Or it may work the other way. Be prepared for either scenario.

If the recruiter discusses vague generalities about the position and you want more specific information, ask questions.

Don't be afraid to ask questions during this part of the interview. Don't interrupt the recruiter in mid-sentence, but ask your question at the first opportunity.

When the recruiter begins talking about your resume or asking for clarification, it's time to emphasize your positive traits. Your background may not be typical and the recruiter may be puzzled about your qualifications. You should indicate through thoughtful answers why you are an excellent candidate for the position.

You may have points in your background that could be construed as negative, i.e., low grade point average, no participation in outside activities, no related work experience. It is up to you to convince the recruiter these points are not negative but positive attributes. Admit your shortcomings, then point out three quick hard-hitting strengths (even if unrelated to your weakness) that are relevant to the job opening.

Many times recruiters will ask why you chose the major you did or what your career goals are. These questions are designed to determine your goal direction.

Employers seek people who have direction and motivation. This can be demonstrated by your answers to these innocent-sounding questions.

It's your turn to ask questions

When the recruiter asks, "Now do you have any questions?" The best way to blow the interview is to say, "No, you've answered everything I need to know." There is little chance the two of you could have covered everything. You should be able to ask at least five or six questions at this point.

Dr. C. Randall Powell, author of Career Planning Today, suggests some excellent strategies for dealing with this issue. He says questions should elicit positive responses from the employer. Also, the questions should bring out your interest in and knowledge of the organization.

By asking intelligent, well thought-out questions, you show the employer you are serious about the organization and need more information. It also indicates to the recruiter that you have done your homework.

Don't ask questions simply to impress the recruiter and make the interview run over. Ask a few questions and indicate that you still have some things you'd like clarified, but you realize time is almost up. The recruiter may suggest a meeting later in the day or writing for more information. The important thing is to be aware of time constraints on the employer and allow the recruiter to decide whether to extend the interview.

The close counts, too

The interview isn't over until you walk out the door. The conclusion of the interview usually lasts five minutes and is very important. During this time the recruiter may be assessing your overall performance as well as how you handle yourself during the last few minutes.

It is important to remain enthusiastic and courteous. Often the conclusion of the interview is indicated when the recruiter stands up. However, if you feel the interview has reached its conclusion, feel free to stand up first.

Shake the recruiter's hand and thank him or her for considering you. Being forthright is a quality that most employers will respect, indicating that you feel you have presented your case and the decision is now up to the employer.

Expect the unexpected

During the interview, you may be asked some unusual questions. don't be too surprised. Many times questions are asked simply to see how you react.

For example, surprise questions could range from, "Tell me a joke" to "What time period would you like to have lived in." These are not the kind of questions for which you can prepare in advance. Your reaction time and the response you give will be evaluated by the employer, but there's now way to anticipate questions like these. While these questions are not always used, they are intended to force you to react under some stress and pressure. The best advice is to think and give a natural response.

Evaluations made by recruiters

The employer will be observing and evaluating you during the interview. Erwin S. Stanton, author of Successful Personnel Recruiting and Selection, indicates some evaluations made by the employer during the interview include:

1. How mentally alert and responsive is the job candidate?
2. Is the applicant able to draw proper inferences and conclusions during the course of the interview?
3. Does the applicant demonstrate a degree of intellectual depth when communicating or is his/her thinking shallow and lacking depth?
4. Has the candidate used good judgement and common sense regarding life planning up to this point?
5. What is applicant's capacity for problem-solving activities?
6. How well does candidate respond to stress and pressure?

Wright wins steeplechase

By BL

Junior Mike Wright started off the outdoor track season on the right foot by winning the 3000m steeplechase and racking up yet another top ten time in the school record. On Saturday, April 9, Wright (9:35.7), closely followed by sophomore Declan Gilbert (9:45.6), took the top two places. Last week, a mistake was made in the 'Spring track preview.' The steeplechase is a 3000m race where the runners must jump a series of 28 barriers and 7 water jumps; not 10 as previously quoted.

The Fitchburg Co-Ed Invitational was a great way to start off the season for many athletes. Jason Carkouros (4:06.7) and Pat Sweeney (4:08.1) grabbed third and fourth place, respectively in the first heat of the 1500m; Carkouros also went on to finish third in the 800m with a time of 1:58.7. Freshman Eric Desharnais (4:05.3) won the second heat of the 1500m, while Suraffel Assefa (4:08.8) finished third.

The 4x100m relay team consisting of Joe Palano, Tim Gunn, Bill Campbell, and John Choate took third place with a time of 43.6. Bill Campbell also finished fourth (11.7) in the 100m dash finals; taking second (11.4) in the trials and third (11.5) in the semis; then, he went on to finish fourth (23.7) in the 200m. Joe Palano finished sixth in the 200 with a time of 24.4. Senior sprinter John Choate ran to a fine second place finish in the 400m with a time of 50.3 seconds. Congratulations are extended to Mike Wright and Eric Desharnais for winning their events in the first track meet of this season. The Chiefs next meet is Saturday, April 16, at Central Connecticut in New Britain. Hope to see you there.

Mass finishes second in Ekiden

By Valarie Castora

The Ekiden Relay, usually a Japanese national sportin event, went international this year. The race, sponsored by Asics, was held in New York on Saturday, April 9. Teams representing every state in the United States, and nine countries competed. The state teams are chosen by picking the five best runners in the state. This year's Massachusetts team consisted of Collin Petty, Paul Gorman, Randy Thomas, Bob Hodge, and Dave Dunham. The names Bob Hodge and Dave Dunham should be familiar. Bob is the women's track coach here at the University. Dave is a seven time All-American, and currently the assistant coach to the men's track team. Both are graduates of the University of Lowell, and both were coached by track coach George Davis. Massachusetts is believed to have the only team consisting of more than one graduate from the same school.

The relay consisted of five legs: 5K, 8K, 12K, 15K, and 10K. Bob Hodge ran the second fastest national time (44.59) in the 15K leg, and Dave Dunham ran the sixth fastest national time (29.58) in the 10K leg. This, along with fast times turned in by the other members of the team, earned the Mass. team a second place finish, nationally. California won, and Arizona finished third. Internationally, the team from Ireland won, USA was second, and Russia was third.

notnAP -- I am still the only person you haven't sent a personal to. I was so depressed when I didn't get one from you that I lost all faith in the personals page and almost decided never to write to anyone again. Since the personals represent my basic reason for living, I seriously contemplated throwing my alter-ego over the bridge. However, I realized that the water is up so high that it might survive. I then was going to hang glide from the 15th floor to Olsen using toilet paper and tooth picks to make my wings. But, as you can clearly see, the moment of insanity has passed, and I'm as loquacious as ever. Adult Children of Alcoholics and Dysfunctional Families

As adult children from dysfunctional families we understand the painful experiences of growing up in unhealthy environments, whether it was the disease of alcoholism, or other kinds of physical or emotional deprivation. As a group we are trying to have a 'positive outlook' on life today. This kind of attitude will allow us to experience joy, and we can move on a life path of acceptance, love, and freedom. We can choose to change our attitudes and this gives us that wonderful gift of freedom that we search for. The freedom to change to our unhealthy thinking and behavior to one of hope and health.

The best way to become healthy is to attend meetings. At meetings we have the opportunities to learn from and to share our hope, support and caring with each other. The following information is the list of meetings held on campus.

Concordia and Leitch Residents: Annual Steak and Brew will be held Thursday April 28th at 5:00pm!!! Join in on the fun and....!!!

4th Floor Smith: Don't forget to sign up for the floor party!! This is the last week!!!!!!

To All the Leitch men who I got a shot of last Wednesday night!!!! The shots will be shown Thursday night April 28 at the Annual Steak and Brew!!! Be there!!!! Signed, The Concordia Hall Photographer

Dave - Talks 'till 4am... Death rides on Route 3 North... Getting to the movies eventually... "Taking notes" in Chem and Physics lectures... the home court advantage in backgammon... long train rides on cold Fridays... these are a few of my favorite things! -Guess who

485 NSA — Porches are red, Supras are blue, warm water is fun, don't you think so too? P.S. Still looking for more adjectives! 374 FZC

Kim & Laurie in 1722: Maybe we'll host the next party! -Amy & Dave

To the Old lady in C 226: Happy Birthday. Love, K

Happy Birthday Cris

Cris: Happy 20th Birthday! You're the best. Love Kathy

To the Lady in Waiting, Since we have known each other, we have grown closer and closer. I can see it in your eyes when you try to undress me. Your name should now be the Lady in Waiting. The Spanish Fly

KY: Get psyched!! Convention is here! Suds- Keep up those inter-chapter relations! It'll be a weekend worth waiting for. See you at North Adams. Ha and Q-P

To Fireball: "I'm Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer..." or was it Channel No. 5? I want to know what happened to the first 4 though... Hey Bianca; how was that test with all the bubbles in it? Better watch those dreams, you never know what you might say. By the way, did you sleep with that phone number under your pillow or what? Every time you turned your head I heard a strange krinkling... Let's see how many other original names we can come up with next Thursday night. -The other roomie, Claudette

To "Oldman" from the library, not to be confused with the new one: Had a great time when we went out (as usual) and I'm incredibly happy when I'm with you! Next time I hope you don't "get caught with your pants down". Friday was a bonus, I just wish I could have stayed later! Hope to hear from you soon. Partner in Crime

Greg: Had a great time last week. Keep practicing those lefts and rights - you are doing a great job. See you soon, Kathy

Silver Surfer: Thanks for being an awesome sister, I don't know what I'd do without you! I'm really going to miss you at convention! It won't be the same without you! Keep smiling. Q-P

Julie & Sharon - I didn't know living in a triple could be so much fun. But, I have one question - Who's that other girl that sleeps in here? Does she have a name? How were the sombreros and the one AM phone calls? Do you realize how many calories were in those drinks? Have some more punch. -Marie P.S. What floor were we supposed to be on anyway? I'm confused.

Little Brown Girl, You must be my Cinderella, because you have an orange pumpkin for a carriage. Little Italy

Wanted: Little Brown Girl to hug, kiss, cuddle with and sing love songs to. Address response to Little Italy

Little Brown Girl, The song goes, "...When I said that I loved you, I meant that I'd love you forever. So, I'm gonna keep on lovin' you, cause it's the only thing I want to do, I don't want to sleep, I just want to keep on lovin' you..." Little Italy

Little Brown Girl, You know who I am, you can see it in my eyes. But if you ask me, my answer will be full of denials. Little Italy

Little Italy: It must be difficult not to be able to even approach the girl that you supposedly love... The Typesetter

Angelina, a.k.a. Bimbo, You had the first one in your hands, but you let him go, you had the second one right where you wanted him, but he let you go. Strike one, strike two; one more strike and you're through. Al

To the girls in 1706: What a week, what an even more amazing weekend, we had desperate bimbos, weeping widows, we even had scary cats, and trashed brats. Its been real, let's do it one more time. One of the roomies

Jill, What were you doing at the party Friday night. Then you went to the Derby? I thought you didn't like places like that Diane, you asked us if we got lucky in Daytona, but what about you and Cherie. With all of those men, the answer must be yes!

Diane, I hope you liked what you saw last week. Now it's your turn -D

Cherie, alias NMF, now you'll stop complaining about your personals

Someone in Leitch has some x-rated photos of Jeff B.

Above: I don't think I want to know why someone in Leitch has x-rated pictures of another male... The Typesetter Diane, could you tell us what happens to a girl who passes out with 6-7 guys in her room?? You don't remember?! Oh No!!

How many men can fit into one room at the Esquire Motel? For an answer see Cherie to the "Chef" on the 12th floor: Isn't it strange how you fall asleep with 2 girls and wake up alone...

To the residents of 1010: Did you get the message? Signed, A "Friend"?

Dave Buckely, You get my number and then you don't call? The girl from O Pi

Thank you to whoever gave me the beautiful yellow daffodil Sunday morning! The Fragrance is exquisite and it really brightened my day. Cindy

Dear Kristen, I am so sorry for obnoxiously pouring beer all over you at the DK party Friday night. I am extremely apologetic that I made you look so terrible in front of all the AST sister, seeing as it was completely my fault, because I started it all and blamed it on you. Please forgive me!!! Babs P.S. Are we still friends?

Hey, I know where you can get a shot of vodka for a nickel!! Thanx M&M, I hope you had fun at the feast and throw. K201E

Babs, are you Hi?

Babs, Here's to 10 laps. What do ya say, another round on Karen on me!!!! K201E

This booga, Karen H. has been at ULowell for 2 years and never got a personal. What a toad!

Babs: Please throw another at me. I will just stand here like a good pledge -- your target, K201E

Michelle and Kathy: You ought to stop saying high to those pears with your peers!!! 201

Kristen, you olympic athlete! And they all said it couldn't be done! The early bird gets the beer you know!!!

Kristen (or should I say Madame Hostess?): Real sorry 'bout your impromptu shower Friday night. Just think of it as a repayment for the alt in my hair of the oa in my coke!!!! Tau Love, Babs (Your most favoritist sister)

NoMuTT, Skeme, Bagel, Zorba, Spanky, The Brat, The Typesetter, Green Eyes, The Two Most Important People in the World, Schnook, and Elizabeth: Party at my place, 4-21-88. Be there or suffer the consequences. --15th Floor Junior

'King Kong Died for Your Sins' Rev. Art Brown: It's not just Christians who believed Jesus died for our sins. So don't say "why the Connector chose to mock christianity is beyond me." Because if it is "mocking," then it's not just mocking Christianity is it???? No Harm

This is the Central Scrutinizer. It is my responsibility to enforce all the laws that haven't been passed yet. It is also my responsibility to alert you of the consequences of various everyday activities that may result in the Death Penalty, or affect your parent's credit rating. -The Central Scrutinizer

The Central Scrutinizer: Interesting concept. Does that include the no smoking law, the death penalty for DWI and the destruction of your parents credit rating for cheating on financial aid packages??? The Typesetter

If it isn't at least a little messy, how can you be sure it was fun?

Eef you don't go und zee the ULowell Players produktion uff "Six Characters in search of an Author", I will get ferry, ferry ehngry!! I mean, what betta vay to kep off ze Shpring Kahnival? Go Und Zee It, Or I Vill Personally Administer Punishment! Ach De Lieber! (April 28, 29, 30, 31, Mahoney Hall. Real Cheap.) -Herr Direktor

How to Stop Religious Harassment!!!! The next person that asks you to go to a bible study or religious meeting. Just roll your eyes up and say, "Satan loves you!!!" --No Harm

No Harm: I disagree. If someone asks you to go, have enough confidence to say, "No thank you." There is no need to instigate harassment yourself. Remember, if someone doesn't ask you, you may never have the chance to try anything new. The Typesetter

Wolf— My efforts were successful in finding out who you are. The only problem is, it's not you. Time is scarce!! -Soup

Wolf: Otherwise, Soup has no idea who you are. Write soon to relieve the suffering. The Typesetter

Chris— It's been two months since I met you and life keeps getting better! Have a great time in Georgia. Can't wait 'till you get back! Till then -John

The Typesetter --Now you're trying to tell me that you have space in your room for miniture [sic], too?!! I'm sorry, but I can't imagine all of miniture in one "tiny" dorm room. --The Punster

The Punster: I'll admit it boggles the mind, but the fight necessary to get miniture in my tiny dorm room was well worth the tremendous effort. The Typesetter

Skeme— Sure, I shattered a few glasses, but screams of abject horror at the appearance of the Rugrat team really don't count, do they? --15th Floor Junior Skeme -- Since I missed the funeral (cremation), can we at least have a memorial service? My life just won't be the same without number 47 (sniff). --15th Floor Junior. P.S. How did numbers one through infinity survive the accident? So they miss their lost comrade? Just curious

15th Floor Junior: You know what they say, "When your number's up, your number's up." It just happened to be number 47. The other numbers, of course, miss their comrade, but with time, the wound will heal. The Typesetter. [It was a horrible sight]

Hey Loverboy (Spaz): Thank you for coming into my life. I'm so lucky to have you. Oh, by the way, I think I changed my mind, don't stop driving me crazy. I love you

Hey Murph, is it okay if I move in with you and Spaz? Guess Who

In 1820 the branding iron was invented. I hear the cattle were really impressed. --The Punster

Last summer, I worked at M&M/Mars Candy Company. One day, one of our employees fell into a huge vat of gum, and our boss had to chew him out! --The Punster

To All Personal Page Users: I need one liners. Type them out on an index card with your name and box number. No credit will be given (then it wouldn't be a one liner). Address them to The Typesetter

Jay: I hear that some of your objects are pretty inanimate, and that some of your inanimate objects can be pretty animate. But anyway, I'm happy to see that you and your big pink feathers are finally coming out of the closet. Schnook

Happy Birthday to the following famous people (anyone who can tell why they're famous, we'd like to hear from you). Frances Perkins, April 10, 1882; Henry Clay, April 12, 1777; Thomas Jefferson, April 13, 1743; Frank Woolworth, April 14, 1852; Apollo XIII, April 11, 1970

Above: I wasn't aware that Apollo XIII qualified as a person!! The Typesetter

And now a moment of silence to remember Abraham Lincoln, who died on this date, April 14, 1856

Attention All Personals Readers: The NoMuTT Foundation is sponsoring a Buck-A-Clue Fund. This fund is being raised to help wayward children find their true vocation in life. So please, spare a dollar of your hard earned cash, and add a little insight to a helpless child's being. Checks can be made payable to: The NoMuTT Foundation, Buck-A-Clue Fund, c/o Miss Scarlet

Lisa --Hitting your head against wooden poles? Next time try beating on a plastic German (I hear they are very soft!). -- 15th Floor Junior

The Typesetter: Sure I had a great time with those two guys, but it wasn't at any keg party. (Know what I mean?) Also, from what I hear, you have NO morals to speak of. Lisa

Lisa: As I said last week, I believe morals are self defined. How can I have no morals if I define my own morals? When you compare morals of one person to another, then you may be able to say that I have no morals. But you don't know me well enough to know my morals. The Typesetter

To the blond guy in the truck on Thursday at 1:30, if you had only asked me to keep you warm, I would have been more than happy to oblige. The Blond

Top Five Freshmen Male Egos on Campus:

1. Rob Meffan
2. Rob Meffan
3. Rob Meffan
4. Matt Donovan
5. Jay Slazenger [sic]

Above: Number 4 doesn't attend school here until the fall (and you obviously don't know him too well). Learn how to spell number 5's name. No comment about numbers 1-3. The Typesetter

Rhiannon: Sorry for saying so much at your house. Sometimes ulterior motives show through. If you're happy, that's all that matters. I just think that sometimes in everyone's life, they are swept off their feet by someone. Henley

The Typesetter -- Why is that those who've got it just don't want to share, and those who want to share just ain't got it? --15th Floor Junior
